Behavior Management Policy

The camp is designed to be a safe, caring and uplifting place where all campers feel welcome and can experience God's love. When campers choose not to follow directions, obey safety procedures or bully others, they put their own safety and the safety of other campers at risk. Camp staff will provide clear instruction about rules and expectations at the start of camp and throughout activities.

If a child is involved in a serious incident, the parent/ guardian will be informed. If the camper is willing to work through the issue and resolve conflicts, they will be allowed to return to their cabin/activity. If a camper's behavior is severe or ongoing, parents will be required to remove their child from camp at their own expense with no refund.
